Publication Awards for Junior Scientists

It is an important goal to of the Department of Business Administration and Economics to foster research activities and journal publications of its junior members. In order to support these activities and to acknowledge successful publication activities of junior scientist of the Department, starting in January 2012 the Department will provide a publication award for every paper published in a recognized journal by a junior scientist of the Department.

Who is eligible?

Every employee of the Department of Business Administration and Economics who is within 6 years after completion of a doctoral degree and all students who have been accepted as doctoral students by the 'Promotionsausschuss' of the Department of Business Administration and Economics.

Which publications are recognized?

An eligible author can claim the award for a paper if it has been published or accepted for publication (a letter from the journal editor is needed as proof in this case) in the current calendar year in a journal which is included in at least one of the following three lists:

- EconLit journals:
http://www.aeaweb.org/econlit/journal_list.php
- JourQual Journals in the category A, B or C:

What is the award?

For each eligible journal publication the author is awarded 500€ research money, which can be used for research related trips, journal submission fees or similar research related activities within 24 months after the date the award is given. The total amount of research money which can be awarded to the same author is limited to 1000€ per calendar year.

How is the application procedure?

After a paper has been accepted for publication in an eligible journal the author should fill out the application form und submit it together with a proof of acceptance at the Dekanat (U3-143). Within one month she/he will receive a confirmation that the research money has been awarded. Expenses to be charged to the available research money can then be submitted to the Dekanat. All papers which have received an award will be listed in a special section of the Department's webpage.

Best regards,
